Quotes From The News

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

CENTERVILLE, Iowa — Curtis Green, assistant police chief of the community where a Continental Airlines jetliner crashed: —

"Our estimate is that the craft exploded in the air. We are picking the stuff up over a 10-mile area."

ALGIERS, Algeria — A European doctor who was a director of an Algerian clinic but forced to flee the war-torn country: —

"Nobody defends us. The situation in Algeria is catastrophic. I left behind everything I had."

WASHINGTON — President Kennedy, in a message to the U.S. Committee for Refugees, which is trying to assist thousands who are fleeing Red China: —

"The quest for human dignity unites East Germans in Berlin, Chinese in Hong Kong and Cubans in Miami. We must identify ourselves with this cause."

CANTON, Ga. — V. R. Key, after authorities raided and dynamited a moonshine still on his property: —

"Things are getting so stiff up in these hills, a man can't run off two good batches of whiskey before his whole operation gets blown up."

There's No Getting Around The Fact That Ray Moore Is The Pitcher Sustaining Twins

By MILTON RICHMAN

United Press International

Ray Moore tells everyone he's 35, an out-and-out fib, but there's no getting around the fact that he's the man who is keeping those persistent Minnesota Twins moving around the top of the American League.

The gray-haired, pipe-smoking Moore, closer to 40 than 35, has been pressed into relief in three of the Twins' last four games and has won two of them.

"Our rookies, like Rich Rollins and Bernie Allen, have done a tremendous job," says manager Sam Mele, "but Moore has been our real life-saver."

The veteran right-hander turned in another superb performance Tuesday night when he was credited with a 6-5 victory over the Washington Senators that moved the Twins into a virtual tie for first place with the New York Yankees.

Relieves In Eighth

Moore, who calls everyone else "Horse," centered out of the bullpen in the eighth inning with Washington runners on first and second and one out. He immediately induced Danny O'Connell and Chuck Cottier to pop up and then protected his one-run lead through the ninth.

Moore was Minnesota's fourth pitcher and actually came into the game with the Twins leading by one run. The official scorer awarded him the victory, his third of the season, because he felt Moore had been the most effective Minnesota hurler after starter Georges Maranda failed to survive the fifth.

The Twins broke a 2-2 tie in the third with a four-run rally highlighted by Bob Allison's two-run single, Lennie Green and Chuck Cottier hit homers.

In other AL games, the Yankees shaded the Los Angeles Angels, 2-1, in 12 innings; the Baltimore Orioles beat the Cleveland Indians, 4-1, and the Kansas City A's handed the Boston Red Sox their eighth straight loss, 5-1. The Tigers and White Sox were idle.

Cards Extend Streak
The St. Louis Cardinals ran their winning streak to six games in the National League with a 6-2 win over the Philadelphia Phillies; the Los Angeles Dodgers downed the first-place San Francisco Giants, 5-1; the Cincinnati Reds beat the Milwaukee Braves, 3-2, in 11 innings; the Houston Astros nipped the New York Mets, 3-2, and the Chicago Cubs defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates, 3-1.

Eliot Howard's sacrifice fly with the bases loaded in the 12th gave the Yankees their victory over the Angels. Four Yankee pitchers, Whitey Ford, Jim Coates, Bud Daley and Bob Turley collaborated in a one-hit effort.

A pair of home runs by Jim Gentile, his 11th and 12th of the season, and one by pitcher Milt Pappas, his third, powered the Orioles to victory over the Indians.

Pappas, who held the tribe to four hits in 6½ innings, was credited with his fifth victory. Jim Perry was the loser.

Jimenez Homers
Dave Wickensham and Diego Segui combined to hold the Red Sox to five hits as Manny Jimenez provided the Athletics' winning margin with a two-run home-off loser Galen Cisco; Bob Tillman homered for Boston's only run.

Bob Gibson won his sixth game for the Cardinals, striking out nine and holding the Phillies to four hits. He lost his shutout in the ninth when Johnny Callison rapped a two-run homer. Three Philadelpha errors paved the way for Paul Brown's first defeat.

The victory moved the Cards to within 2½ games of the Giants, who were limited to five hits by winner Stan Williams and reliever Larry Sherry. Tommy Davis hit a two-run homer, his second against the Giants in as many games. Jack Sanford was the losing pitcher.

Win In 11th
Don Blasingame and Leo Cardenas each singled home a run in the 11th inning for the Reds as Jim O'Toole out-pitched Bob Shaw of the Braves. The victory was O'Toole's fourth in nine decisions. Gordy Coleman homered for Cincinnati in the second inning.

Norm Larker's two-run triple in the eighth inning gave the Colts their second straight victory over the Mets. Dick Farrell went the distance for Houston and scattered 10 hits for his fourth victory. Loser Jay Hook, who also went the distance, gave up only seven hits, including a fourth inning homer by Roman Mejias.

George Altman accounted for all the Cubs' runs against the Pirates with his ninth homer and a pair of singles. Don Cardwell recorded his first victory after four straight

IAN FLEMING'S Greatest Thriller THUNDERBALL

CHAPTER 22

THE P.A. system in the ceiling of the Monte spoke clearly. "Watch Officer to Captain. Police officer with urgent message for Commander Bond."

Commander Pedersen pressed a switch and spoke into a desk microphone. "Bring him below. Prepare to cast off lines. All hands prepare for sailing."

The captain waited for the acknowledgment and returned the switch. He smiled across at James Bond and Felix Leiter. He said to Bond, "What's the name of that girl? Domino? Well, Domino, say the good word."

The door opened. A police corporal, his hat off, crashed to attention on the steel flooring and extended a stiff arm. Bond took the envelope and slit it open. He ran his eyes down the penciled message signed by the Police Commissioner. Unemotionally he read out:

"Plane returning 1730 halted inbound. Disco sailed at 1755. Full speed, course northwest. Stop Grid did not Repeat not reappear on dock after boarding."

Bond borrowed a signal blank from the captain and wrote:

"Mantá will endeavor shadow via Northwest Providence Channel Stop Fighter bomber squadron from Fort Lauderdale. Will be asked through Navy Department to cooperate within radius of two hundred miles off Florida coast. Stop Mantá will keep contact through Windsor Field Air Control Stop Navy Department and Admiralty being informed Stop Please inform Governor also Admiral Carlson and Brigadier Farrelton on arrival."

Bond signed the message and passed it to the captain, who also signed it, as did Leiter. Bond put the message in an envelope and gave it to the corporal, who wheeled smartly and clanked out in his heavy boots.

When the door was shut, the captain pressed down the switch of the intercom. He gave orders to sail, surfaced, course due north, at ten knots.

Bond sat and worried about the significance of the Commissioner's message and about Domino Vitelli. It looked bad. Domino had not brought the two bombs, or one of them, in which case the mobilization of the Monte and of the fighter bombers was a pretty meaningless precaution, hardly justified by the evidence.

It could easily be that the crashed Vindicator and the missing bombs were the work of some entirely different group and that, while they chased the Disco, the field was being left clear for SPECTER. But Bond's instincts refused to allow him to accept this possibility. As cover, the whole Disco-Largo set-up was one hundred per cent watertight. It could not be faulted in any respect.

That in itself was enough to arouse Bond's suspicions. A plot of this magnitude and audacity could only have been conceived under faultless cover and down to the smallest detail.

Bond, fretted with indecision and the fear that he and Leiter were making majestic fools of themselves, forced himself to face one certainty—he and Leiter and the Mantá were engaged on a crazy gamble.

If the bomb was on board, if the Disco veered north for the Grand Bahamas and the missile station, then, by racing up the Northwest Channel, the Mantá might intercept her in time.

But if this gamble paid off, with all its possibilities of error, why hadn't Domino made her signal? What had happened to her?

THE Disco, a dark torpedo leaving a deep, briefly ceasing wake, hurtled across the indigo mirror of the sea. In the big stateroom there was silence save for the dull boom of the engines and the soft tinkle of a glass on the sideboard.

Although, as a precaution, the storm shutters were battened down over the portholes, the only light inside came from a single port navigation lantern hung from the roof.

The dim red light only just illuminated the faces of the twenty men sitting round the long table, and the red-and-black-shadowed features, contorting with the slight sway of the top light, gave the scene the appearance of a conspiracy in hell.

At the top of the table, Emilio Largo, his face, though the cabin was air-conditioned, shining with sweat, began to speak. His voice was tense and hoarse with strain. "I have to report that we are in a state of emergency. Half an hour ago, No. 17 found Miss Vitelli in the well deck. She was standing fiddling with a camera. When No. 17 came upon her she lifted the camera and prepared to take a photograph."

Largo paused. He said quietly, "The camera was a fake. It concealed a Geiger counter. The counter was, very naturally, registering over 500 milliroentgens. I brought her back to consciousness and questioned her. She refused to talk. In due course I shall force her to do so and then she will be eliminated. It was time to sail. I again rendered her unconscious and reposed her securely to her bunk. I have now summoned this meeting, to acquaint you of this occurrence, which I have already reported to No. 2."

Largo was silent. A threatening, exasperated growl came from round the table. No. 14, one of the Germans, said through his teeth, "And what, Mister No. 1, did No. 2 have to say about this?"

"He said we were to carry on. He said the whole world is full of Geiger counters looking for us. The secret services of the whole world have been mobilized against us. Some lunacy in Nassau, the police probably, was perhaps ordered to have a radiation search made of all ships in the harbor. Perhaps Miss Vitelli was bribed to bring the counter on board. But No. 2 said that once we have placed the weapon in the target area there will be nothing to fear."

"I have had the radio operator listening for unusual traffic between Nassau and the Coast. No density is quite normal. If we were suspected, Nassau would be deluged with wireless traffic from London and Washington. But all is quiet. So the operation will proceed as planned. When we are well away from this area, we will dispose of the lead casing of the weapon. The lead casing will contain Miss Vitelli."

No. 14 persisted: "But you will first obtain the truth from this woman? It is not pleasant for our future plans to think that we may be under suspicion."

"Interrogation will begin as soon as the meeting is over. If you want my opinion, those two men who came on board yesterday—this Bond and the man, Larkin—may be involved. They may be secret agents. The so-called Larkin had a camera. I did not look at it closely, but it was similar to that in the possession of Miss Vitelli. I blame myself for not having been more careful with these confidants."

"Our return to Nassau tomorrow morning, we shall have to be circumspect. Miss Vitelli will have fallen overboard. I will work out the details of the story. There will be an inquest. This will be irritating but nothing more. Our witnesses will be unshakable."

A living nightmare awaits Domino Vitelli. Continue the story here tomorrow.

45 Die . . .

It was due to make a stop in Kansas City before proceeding to Los Angeles—but fate intervened.

Heavy squalls, lightning and thunderstorms were reported in the vicinity of Kirksville, Mo., and farmers reported seeing a bright orange burst of light about 10:30 p. m. (EDT).

More than 700 searchers joined in the night-long hunt for the wreckage in an area of thick underbrush, and timber between Centerville and Unionville, Missouri. Centerville is about 66 miles southeast of Des Moines.

The plane carried 37 passengers and a crew of eight. There were indications it disintegrated in the air, scattering fragments over a broad area in two states.

at the home of Mrs. W. E. Mische at 2:30 p. m. Mrs. Ralph Woods will give the program.

The Jessie Houston Service Club of the Supreme Forest Woodmen Circle will meet at the home of Mrs. Hazel Tutt, Benton Road, at 7:30 p. m.

The Zeta Department of the Murray Woman's Club will have a potluck supper at the club house at 6:30 p. m. Hostesses will be Mesdames H. J. Bryan, Stark Erwin, Louis Charles Ryan, John Ed Scott, Ace McReynolds, Joe B. Littleton, and Robert Wyman.

The Crafts Club of the Calloway County Homemakers Club will meet in the assembly room of the Extension office at 9 a. m.

The Annie Armstrong Circle of the Hazel Baptist Church WMS will meet at the home of Mrs. Mary Turbow at seven o'clock in the evening.
